Governor Says He'll Need Democrats' Aid

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken was sworn into office New Year's Day for his first full term as the state's chief executive, but it was former Gov. George Romney who stole the show at the inaugural ceremonies.

It was supposed to be a day featuring Milliken with the lieutenant governor, James H. Brickley, cast in a strong supporting role.

Democrats, elated at their sweep of all other partisan offices on the ballot, were holding their own celebration. Romney and his wife, Lenore, first made their appearances on the capitol steps at the specific invitation of Milliken.

GOVERNOR AGAIN?

One puzzled observer was heard to say: "Is Romney going to become governor again?"

Milliken took the oath of office in chilly, 20-degree weather before a sparse crowd of some 500. He asked for bipartisan support to help solve Michigan's future problems, speaking slowly and deliberately during his 15-minute address.

The loudest applause followed by gales of laughter came after Milliken said: "Today, after so many Democrats have taken office, it is appropriate to reaffirm that pledge."

At the Republican inaugural reception and luncheon, Romney, U.S. Secretary for Housing and Urban Development, spoke twice as long as Milliken.

He praised President Nixon and Milliken, blasted the news media and defended the losing U.S. Senate campaign of his wife against Sen. Philip H. Hart.

Republicans, who paid $75 each to attend, loved every minute of it. They gave Romney standing applause. "We have the right man now serving as President of the United States," said Romney of Nixon. "He has made a marvelous contribution in the international field. I predict he will do the same in the national field in the next two years."

Romney said of Milliken: "You have the right man in the governor of Michigan. When I left the state he became the leader of the party. I tell you now he will lead us forward and make Republicans again the dominant party in Michigan."

Then Romney lashed out at newsmen. "There has been a folklore in Michigan about that campaign by my wife," said Romney bitterly. "It has been written that it was a disastrous campaign by my wife and tended to undercut Gov. Milliken."

"I didn't raise a finger to suggest her as a candidate. I didn't even campaign for her until the final day."

"She sacrificed herself by becoming a candidate. She had a pledge to keep and Lenore kept it. Lenore kept the party from becoming split by a bloody primary."

Miliken, who inherited the governor's chair after Romney left for his Washington cabinet post, had only kind words about

Yacht Breaks Up In High Seas

SAUGATUCK — The bodies of a man and woman, found in the Gulf of Mexico Thursday amid the wreckage of their boat, have been identified as Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Coburn, both about 50, owners of Saugatuck's largest motel.

The bodies were found by the Coast Guard, ending a search that began Tuesday when the Coast Guard air station at St. Petersburg, Fla., picked up a distress call.

The alarm was received at 2:30 p.m. from a man who said that his boat, the Cara Mia, "is breaking up and taking on water." The location was given as seven hours, 13 minutes, out of Apalachicola, Fla., (northern end of the state) headed to Clearwater (midway on the state's west coast, near Tampa).

The coast guard reported winds up to 50 knots with 6-foot seas in that area at the time. Visibility was less than one mile.

The air station dispatched a helicopter with auxiliary pumps intended to be dropped to the floundering boat, but the pilot found no trace of the Cara Mia.

The last radio contact with the stricken boat was 3:45 p.m. When no trace of the boat was found by nightfall, a cutter was dispatched from Tampa. It and aircraft from St. Petersburg continued the search throughout the night.

EFFORTS ACCELERATED
The rescue efforts were accelerated daily throughout the week. Until in the final day, Thursday, there were five aircraft and two cutters participating in the search. In the final stages the search was directed by headquarters at Miami. The bodies, supported in life preservers, and surrounded by small pieces of wreckage were discovered at 3:50 p.m. Thursday.

An officer of the search said there was no charring or evidence of any burning found on the wreckage.

LUXURY CRUISER
The Coburns' boat was a 55-foot luxury cruiser, a twin-hulled catamaran, purchased last August. A sister ship is owned by Robert Grove of Grove Engineering, Kalamazoo, and is berthed also at Saugatuck.

Coburn and his wife, Betty, began their trip in late October, boating down the Mississippi to the gulf according to preliminary plans.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Saugatuck, had originally intended to accompany the Coburns, but were forced to change plans at the last minute. However, they were reportedly in contact through a mutual friend in Clearwater, Fla.

The Wilsons said that the Coburns mentioned having engine trouble with the Cara Mia before leaving on the trip, but they felt it was corrected before they started.

CAREFUL BOATERS
The Coburns were very careful boaters, Mrs. Wilson said, "and kept everything they could get on board for safety."

The Coburns owned and operated the Ship 'N Shore motel on the Kalamazoo river. It caters both to auto and boat travelers.

They built the motel about 10 years ago after many years as summer residents here. They came to Saugatuck from Chicago.

The Wilsons said the Coburns have no children, and funeral services and burial will probably be held at Detroit, where they have relatives.

Sen. Zollar Had 'Mild' Heart Attack

Tests conducted on Sen. Charles O. Zollar at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, have revealed that the senator has suffered a mild heart attack.

Zollar will remain at Mercy hospital for an indefinite period of time, according to his physician, who said the senator's condition currently is satisfactory.

The physician this morning said Zollar had sustained "a little heart attack." He termed the attack mild.

Zollar entered Mercy hospital last Tuesday for a checkup and observation after a trip to South Dakota for a visit with his wife's mother.

Zollar, who will be 55 next Wednesday, is chairman of the Senate appropriations committee and also heads the Senate Republican caucus. He gained re-election to the Senate last November as the senator from the 22nd district, covering Berrien, and Cass counties and a portion of St. Joseph county.

His re-election as a Republican provided a 19-19 deadlock in the Senate between Republicans and Democrats.

ILL FATED CRAFT: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coburn, both about 50, Saugatuck motel owners, rode this ill fated luxury cruiser to their death during a storm in the Gulf of Mexico this week. Their bodies were found Thursday after a three-day search by Coast Guard aircraft and boats. This picture was taken last summer as the Coburns took delivery of their boat from a salesman, Bill Burr, Berlin, Wis., shown on deck. (Prosch-Jensen photo)

St. Joe's Larry Krieger A Notre Dame Man

A Notre Dame man to the very end, Larry (Larry) Krieger died of an apparent heart attack Year's day while watching the Irish score one greatest victories in their celebrated history.

Mr. Krieger, 68, was stricken in his home, 1220 Hillcrest avenue, St. Joseph. He was dead on arrival at 3 p.m. at Memorial hospital, just after the Irish had stepped off to a 24-11 halftime lead, then made it stand up for a Cotton Bowl upset of Texas.

A retired executive of Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co., Mr. Krieger was a member of the Notre Dame class of 1928. He was a track star under the Golden Dome during the coaching era of Boeckner. He retired from Auto Specialties in 1964 when he suffered a stroke after being employed there 22 years.

in football and basketball, help lead the Bears to a footb. victory in 1919 over Benton Harbor, one of two by St. Joseph between that year and cessation of the intercity rivalry in the 1940s.

After graduation from college, Mr. Krieger was employed by the John L. Cummings Co., a fire brick manufacturer and foundry supplier in St. Joseph. He later worked for the LaCledde Christy Co. of St. Louis, Mo., after that firm absorbed Cummings Co. Mr. Krieger joined Auto Specialties in 1942.

He was born in St. Joseph, Feb. 9, 1902. He was a member of the St. Joseph Elks Lodge, the St. Joseph Catholic church and the Notre Dame

Fred Bujack Born In St. Joe

Famed Bowler Dies

Fred A. Bujack, a native of St. Joseph and one of the all-time great bowlers, died unexpectedly today at Sacramento, Calif.

Mr. Bujack was 58 years old. An autopsy was to be conducted to determine cause of death which a preliminary finding showed to be a heart attack.

His most memorable bowling feat was winning the American Bowling Congress All-Events tournament in 1955. He fired a 735 singles and his team won the championship for the third time in four years.

Mr. Bujack, 58, carried more than a 200-average over 10 years in the Twin Cities before moving to Detroit in 1941 to join the "big leagues."

In the motor city, he rolled for the E & B and Pfeiffer teams which won world championships and teamed with Don Carter of St. Louis for the American Bowling Congress doubles championship in the early 1950s.

Mr. Bujack, who was once employed here by Twin City Recreation, posted his high series of 807 in the late 40s and had at least 10 perfect 300 games.

He also consistently placed among leaders in the Peterson Classic in Chicago and returned regularly to Benton Harbor—St. Joseph to visit friends and display his bowling prowess.

The standout kegler moved to California in 1966 and left the pro tour in 1968, the same year that he was inducted into the Bowling Hall of Fame at Milwaukee. There is a bronze bust of Bujack displayed now in the Hall of Fame.

Survivors include his widow, Viola; two sons, Frederick A. of Sacramento and David F. of Oxnard, Calif.; four sisters, Mrs. Howard (Laura) Bird, Mrs. Marge Sternaman and Mrs. Minnie Davidson of St. Joseph and Mrs. Helen Bowker of Kalamazoo; and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete this morning at the Mount Vernon funeral chapel, Greenback Lane, Sacramento.

HALL OF FAME BOWLER: Fred A. Bujack died today in Sacramento, Calif., at the age of 58. He was born in St. Joseph and started his bowling career in the Twin Cities.

Quick Running Pollutant

"I love tuna fish but I'm not going to buy it anymore," said a woman in a New York City supermarket the other day. "Everything we eat is poisoned." So it must seem to many Americans as they find that more and more of what they consume is contaminated by man-made substances that could prove detrimental to health.

Both pesticides and industrial waste containing mercury are the latest pollutants to come under fire. The Food and Drug Administration has found that 23 per cent of the canned tuna sampled contained levels of mercury higher than acceptable. While the F.D.A. has said the contaminated tuna is being removed from grocery shelves, there is concern that the 1959 cranberry scare could be repeated.

Mercury pollution first became an issue last March. A graduate student at the University of Western Ontario discovered that walleyed pike caught in Lake St. Clair between Lake Erie and Lake Michigan contained up to 7 parts per million of mercury. The F.D.A. limit for mercury in fish for human consumption is one-half part per million.

Mercury is one of the basic elements and has been known since antiquity as quicksilver. Its use became widespread during the Industrial Revolution. In the 19th century, poisoning showed up in the nervous systems of workers using mercury compounds to treat the felt in hats. Hence the phrase "mad as a hatter."

High levels of mercury have not only been discovered in fish taken from inland waters and lately the oceans. They have also been found in hogs, cattle and birds. Fungicides containing mercury are applied to seeds for most grain crops before they are planted to prevent disease. Experts report that some farmers ignore warnings and feed waste seed grain to their animals. The mercury is passed on to human beings when they eat the meat.

Besides its familiar uses in thermometers, barometers and other measuring instruments, mercury is also used in the chemical, pulp, plastics, electronics and pharmaceutical industries. Some 6 million pounds of the metal were used in the United States during 1969. Since last spring's alarm, mercury contamination has been discovered in the waterways of 33 states and Canada. Says David H. Klein, a chemist at Hope College at Holland, "Mercury is more serious than DDT and less serious than nuclear testing."

Federal and state officials have moved through the courts and with the cooperation of industry to reduce the amount of mercury waste dumped into streams. Environmental Science and Technology magazine reports that industrial discharges have been reduced by 86 per cent.

Scientists say the threat of mercury contamination will continue for perhaps another century. Even if not another pound were discharged into the nation's waterways, there is no known way to eliminate the contamination that already exists.

Do It Yourself Schooling

"The difficult child is the child who is unhappy. He is at war with himself; in consequence he is at war with the world." Speaking is A. S. Neill, who has dedicated his life to making school a happy place. Although 87, Neill is still active in directing Summerhill, the experimental British school now celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Summerhill is a place "where a philosophy of love is lived," writes Herb Snitzer, director of the Lewis - Wadham School in Westport, New York. It is a school where "there are no laws of morality or religion," he claims. Mental and physical conditioning are left to the child.

The new horizons opened at Summerhill have been praised by some and damned by others in countries where many teachers still regard the cane as an effective instrument of control. Opponents of permissiveness object that Neill has left the work vs. play controversy for children to decide. Neill claims it is none of the teacher's business to balance the two. Neill also believes that play should be completely separated from learning. "Play to me means no strings attached at all," he wrote in 1960.

Neill's school first was located in Germany and then in Austria, moving to England in 1924. Initially he was strongly influenced by the psychoanalytic movement. "I never read John Dewey or anyone else," he claims, but came to education through Sigmund Freud.

Most of the pupils who first came to Summerhill were sent in despair by parents or schools who could not control them. "They were thieves, destroyers, bullies of both sexes," he wrote. Because of the startling change in atmosphere, such as the lack of all "requirements," the children were startled into responding. At Summerhill they didn't even have to attend classes. One pupil stayed 13 years in the school without once going to class. Today he is a renowned precision instrument maker.

Neill's real influence has since extended far beyond the borders of the tiny Suffolk boarding school, some 100 miles to the northeast of London. Over the past two decades, Summerhill like schools have mushroomed in the United States. His idea that the goal of good education should be happiness has received wide acceptance.

Although some children are not ready to handle the giddy amount of freedom permitted at Summerhill, most quickly learn to regulate themselves. They seem to realize that being allowed to do anything does not mean infringing on the rights of others. Even so, timid students complain that there is no protection against bullies.

Some Summerhillians, who will meet in London for a golden reunion this month, admit that they have found it difficult to adjust to the outside world. Psychologist Emmanuel Bernstein interviewed 50 Summerhill products and summed up his findings in "Psychology Today." "My feelings were mainly positive... Yet I felt that something was lacking in Summerhill's completely free approach... Not all children can handle complete freedom."

Neill himself expresses little interest in his graduates. His concern is that the child be happy while at Summerhill. As to the younger generation of hippies and flower children, Neill is unenthusiastic. "They are challenging everything that does not matter, the length of hair style of clothes, ways of speaking," he complains "but they are not reducing the evil in the world." This, to Neill, is one of the ultimate goals of true education.

Flags of member countries at the United Nations headquarters in New York fly in alphabetical order at an equal height in front of the 39-story Secretariat, with the U.N. flag above them. When a nation joins the world body, however, its banner is disavowed in a central position above the others for the first day, the National Geographic Society says.

One of the most popular music personalities ever produced by the United States — that was tenor James Melton, star of opera, concert, movies, radio and television. He died at the age of 57.

Because of his wide activity in the entertainment field — especially in radio in the 1930s and 1940s, he was probably better known to the American public than any other Metropolitan Opera star of his generation.

He was renowned for a specialty of his — collecting antique automobiles. He housed his large collection of old cars for many years in a restaurant-museum in Connecticut. He sold that collection before his death.

Melton was born in Moultrie, Ga., and studied at the University of Georgia and Vanderbilt University.

In 1927, he decided it was the moment to move into the "big time" of show business, so he journeyed to New York. Hoping to land an interview with famed showman S. Z. (Rox) Rothafel, Melton went to his office. He got his interview by singing outside Rothafel's door.

Melton was given a contract and he became one of "Rox's Gang" at the Roxey Theater. In 1932 he made his debut in New York's Town Hall. He sang on such radio programs as "Voice of Firestone," "Harvest of Stars," "Telephone Hour," and others.

He was a member of the Met from 1942 to 1952 and among his most popular roles were Alfredo in "La Traviata," Edgardo in "Lucia di Lammermoor," Tamino in "The Magic Flute," and Wilhelm Meister in "Mignon." He died in 1961.

.. And Speaking Of Your Health

A new drug has been created that holds forth great promise for the cure of some virus infections.

The drug, tilorone, seems to have an active effect on some viruses, that heretofore were resistant to drugs. Dr. Russell F. Krueger and Dr. Gerald D. Mayer, in Cincinnati, have created this synthetic compound.

The experimental studies give indication that eventually infections in the human will be controlled by this and other related chemical compounds.

A tiny filter has been devised to clear the blood of emboli. Emboli are small pieces of clots that have broken away from a blocked blood vessel. Unless captured, they can do damage by lodging in the lungs or in the brain.

The filter is now being used and evaluated at the New York Hospital Cornell Medical Center. This will be a valuable contribution to those who have had open heart surgery.

Violence is now recognized as a medical problem as well as a social problem. Intensive studies by psychiatrists and researchers show that many of those who commit violent acts do so because they have some brain abnormality that limits any control over their anger.

Dr. Frank R. Ervin, of the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, says, "The person with this abnormality may go to extremes of behavior. If another driver annoys him in traffic, he may try to ram the other car or drive him off the road. A minor disagreement may cause him to lose control, and he winds up beating his wife or children, or fighting at work."

Until these studies pointed to brain disorders, it was assumed that uncontrolled violent behavior could always be traced to poor environment and inadequate family background.

Now the attitude is that many criminals commit these acts because of disorders in their brain waves.

Perhaps such studies may one day lead to the control of criminal violence.

Pope Paul Is Opposed To Capital Punishment

By LESTER KINSOLVING
"It just occurred to me that the Catholic Church is about the only major denomination that hasn't opposed capital punishment," explained Douglas Lyons of New York, "so I wrote the Pope."

Lyons is a Columbia University law student and son of columnist Leonard Lyons, who is chairman of a new organization called CALM (Citizens Against Legalized Murder).

He has received a letter from the Most Rev. Giovanni Benelli, Undersecretary of State to Pope Paul, marked "From The Vatican." The letter explains that the death penalty was abolished in the Vatican City State, where it had never been utilized.

"This abolition was accomplished under the signature of 1969," explained Bishop Benelli's letter, which added, significantly:

"The thought of His Holiness on the matter is already clearly expressed in this action."

The Pontiff's Kinsolving position could have considerable influence upon Catholic bishops and other clergy in the increasing concern of U.S. church leaders over what could be an unprecedented wave of executions — depending upon the actions of the U.S. Supreme Court.

UNDER SENTENCE

In mid-December, no less than 623 men and women were under sentence of death in the U.S. And it is the various decisions and stays issued by the Supreme Court which for most of them has meant the difference between life and death.

But the Court has two new justices appointed by President Nixon, who favors capital punishment. And if the effect of these new justices means that the Court takes a new course, the resultant bloodbath can be imagined only by comparison to South Africa.

The South African Council of Churches reported recently that within just three years, from 1966 to 1969, there were no less than 256 hangings — on one gallows, Pretoria's Central Prison — an average of one hanging every three days.

Nine major religious denominations have filed motions for leave to file briefs ailing curiae (friend of the court) relating to the death penalty cases now before the Supreme Court: Society of Friends, Episcopal, United Presbyterian, United Methodist, Greek Orthodox, Disciples of Christ, Lutheran Church in America, Church of The Brethren and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

The Pope's position will make it possible for the nation's Catholic prelates to work as hard to save the lives of human beings, as they have on behalf of human embryos, in their opposing even therapeutic abortions.

FEW OPPOSE

A handful of bolder Catholic leaders have publicly opposed capital punishment; such as the late Archbishop Bernard Shiel of Chicago and Boston's Richard Cardinal Cushing; as well as Jesuit Father Donald Campion. Pope Plus XII had justified capital punishment, if it can be proven that it acts as a deterrent to murder. So these pioneer Catholic abolitionists cited, among other things, the Uniform Crime reports of the U.S. Department of Justice (which has itself opposed the death penalty). Year after year, these reports reveal that death penalty states have nearly twice the homicide rate of the 14 states who have virtually — or completely — abolished capital punishment.

There is another principal concern, which led to the abolition of the death penalty in Great Britain — an action backed by the overwhelming majority of the bishops of the Church of England. In 1967 Queen Elizabeth issued a full pardon to Timothy Evans — which came 17 years too late, since Evans was hanged in 1950 — by mistake.

This mistake had been "rectified" by hanging the Crown's chief witness, former police officer John Christie, was found guilty of murdering Mrs. Timothy Evans and four other women.

The bidding:
South 1♠ Pass West 2♠ Pass East 3♠ Pass

Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

When it occurs, which isn't often, the double-barreled end-play is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Perhaps South was exceptionally light for his opening bid, but what he lacked in muscle during the bidding he more than compensated for during the play.

West led the jack of diamonds and it was easy for declarer to conclude that the lead was probably a singleton, since North had bid the suit and West would scarcely have led the jack from a doubleton.

The contract seemed doomed except for the possibility that West held both missing aces. Pursuing this tack, South won the diamond with the king, drew three rounds of trumps, then played a club, dummy's king losing to the ace.

East would undoubtedly have beaten the contract had he now led the jack and another club but, reluctant to continue the suit, he shifted to a low heart, West's eight forcing the king.

Declarer at this point had almost no chance of coming home alive, but still hoping for only the best he returned a club from dummy and followed low when East produced the six.

West was forced to win with the eight, and since he could not tell the actual club position, he elected to play the ace and another heart. After declarer had ruffed, this became the position:

North		East

Stacey Likely Choice Of GOP To Head Board

Berrien Commissioners To Pick Chief

By JERRY KRIEGER
County-Farm Editor

The leading choice of majority Republican members for new chairman of the Berrien board of commissioners reportedly is Lad S. Stacey, 44, Berrien township.

Stacey, chairman of the board's finance committee during the first two years of the 21-member county governing body, apparently won the nod of most of the GOP membership at a recent informal dinner gathering, according to reliable sources.

Chairmanship of the board is scheduled to change hands Monday when, by statutory provision, the board must meet and elect officers.

Frank Poorman of Buchanan will complete two one-year terms as presiding officer of the board and has indicated he would not seek another term. This would be in line with a long tradition of the board to give a chairman two terms in office.

Stacey, who represents District 17 embracing Berrien, Pipestone and Sodus townships, has won a reputation as an able finance chairman during two years in that assignment. He was credited with enforcing an economy program that got the county through 1969 without a deficit and with keeping the county on an even financial keel in 1970.

He is operator of Pennellwood resort on Lake Chapin, in Berrien township, south of Berrien Springs. He is a former member and president of the Berrien Springs school board, former member of the county planning commission, and active in regional resort organizations. He and his wife, Shirli, have five children.

Housing Project

Self-Supporting Families Favored

The directing board of a $2.6 million, 160-unit, townhouse subdivision in Benton township has adopted occupancy guidelines giving preference to self-supporting families and residents of Benton township and the Benton Harbor school district.

The board of Homes for Berrien County Families, Inc., believes the first opportunity should go to Benton township residents because the homes are in the township, according to a statement from President Judd Spray.

Occupancy is hopefully expected to begin in mid-January. Ground - breaking for the subdivision at 1111 South Crystal avenue was held last April 5 and tenant applications were first taken several months ago.

PRIORITIES LISTED

The occupancy guidelines give preference to "those families who have resided over a year first in Benton township and secondly in the Benton Harbor school district."

Subsequent priorities, in order, are: Families displaced by government action, and the elderly and infirm; self-supporting families with both parents, one or more employed; self-supporting families with one parent, employed; families with both parents, one or more employed, receiving some public assistance; families with both parents, receiving assistance; and families with one parent receiving assistance.

Guidelines also direct every effort "to insure inclusion in the (townhouse) development of families of all races and creeds in conformity with federal and local fair housing laws and regulations" and to advise residents of services available to their aspirations. Homes for Berrien County Families, Inc., is sponsored by the Berrien County Council of Churches.

High Cost Placed On Freeways

Would Boost Gasoline Tax

CADILLAC (AP) — Michigan highway users should be prepared to pay an extra penny a gallon in state gasoline taxes if they want the proposed state freeway system completed by the 1982 tentative completion date, according to State Sen. John Toepp, R-Cadillac.

Toepp, chairman of a special Senate subcommittee studying the priority systems of the State Highway Department, said Friday he is drafting legislation providing for such a tax hike, which he says would bring in an additional $39 million a year to the state.

BOND ISSUE

Toepp said that money would help pay for a proposed half-billion dollar bond issue over the next 20 years to complete 814 miles of the state's freeway system.

The 814 miles would include stretches of US 31, US 131, US 23 from Standish to Alpena, and M 21 from Flint to Port Huron.

Toepp, a former Senate majority floor leader, said there is no money in the state budget for completing the freeway system and that without the one-cent hike in gasoline taxes, the 814 miles would not be completed by 1982 as hoped.

"It boils down to the fact that if the people want the system, the people are going to have to pay the extra penny," Toepp said.

He said he hoped the final draft of his legislation would be finished by Feb. 1.

Camera Club

Portugal Next On Local Agenda

"Pulse of Portugal" is the title of the Twin City Camera club's fourth Travel and Adventure series of the season to be shown three nights next week at St. Joseph high school auditorium.

Creator of the travelogue is Jonathan Hagar, a newspaperman for 20 years, who weaves bits of humor and insight into the colorful travelogue. Hagar presents Portugal as modern as tomorrow and as ancient as the Lusitanians who fought Roman legions from hilltop fortresses. It is a land of the Middle Ages where an ox cart and donkey share the roads with Mercedes Benz and diesel truck.

Hagar's camera ranges from the boulevards of modern Lisbon, with the haunting strains of the Fado, Portugal's version of the blues, to the remote beaches and coves of the Moorish Algarve.

The excitement of a bullfight is spiced with the tranquility of the grape-growing Minho region and peasants at work in the fields.

The travelogue will be presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Hagar's other productions include "Cities of the British Isles," and "Come Along to Scotland," numerous educational films and several books.

His chief assistant is Mrs. Hagar, an English feature and fashion writer, who edits and does research for Hagar Productions. Hagar is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism. His newspaper career was a sports writer, police reporter, feature writer and picture editor.

game. Devaney, shedding a maroon which was drenched after his poll-conscious players tossed him into a shower, left no doubt that he believed his unbeaten team should be No. 1 in the final AP poll next week. "Hell yes, we should be No. 1," Devaney said Friday night. "I can't see how they could go any other way. I couldn't even see how the Pope could vote for Notre Dame."

"It was a dream come true," said quarterback Jerry Tagge, after everything went right for the Cornhuskers on New Year's Day. Top-ranked Texas bowed to Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl and Stanford upset second-ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. "There's no doubt about it," said Devaney, "those two games certainly gave our team a little more motivation tonight, but I must say this bunch motivated themselves pretty well all year. "This is definitely the biggest victory of my career," he said. It didn't come easy. The Cornhuskers, ranked third rushed out of the gate to take a 10-0 lead in the opening period on a 28-yard field goal by Paul Rogers and a three-yard run by Joe Orduna. Each followed a fumble recovery. But the fifth-ranked Southeastern Conference champions kept fighting back, trimming the lead to 10-6 on a pair of field goals by Mark Lumpkin. With two minutes left in the third quarter, LSU drove 75 yards, helped by a 19-yard pass interference penalty, to score on the period's final play—a 31-yard pass from Buddy Lee to Al Coffee.

Tagge, voted the game's outstanding back, got his staggering club to regroup and promptly drove them 67 yards to the winning touchdown. The Husker quarterback scored it from the one with 6:10 elapsed in the final period when, as he was belted at the one, he stretched his arms, pushing the ball into the end zone. The arm-stretching act on the third down play was quick thinking by Tagge, who later said, "I thought I made a lot of mental mistakes. Yes, those broken plays were my fault. I just went the wrong way on some new plays we put in for this game." However, it was the Nebraska defense that proved most deadly for LSU as the Huskers dumped Tiger backs for losses 14 times totaling 115 yards. Sophomore Willie Harper, a 205-pound end, was the heart of the defense. He blocked one pass at the line of scrimmage, forced LSU's Wayne Dickinson into a four-yard punt late in the game, stole the ball from the Tiger quarterback in the fourth quarter and made four tackles for 46 yards in losses. He was voted the game's outstanding lineman. LSU's hopes for a last minute miracle died when linebacker Bob Terrio intercepted Bert Jones' pass with 45 seconds remaining. The only battle remaining for the Huskers is that in the final poll. The race for No. 1 appears to be between the Huskers, Notre Dame and fourth-ranked Tennessee, which whipped Air Force in the Sugar Bowl.

Charles McClendon, the genial LSU coach whose team lost to Notre Dame 3-0 said, "They're the same type of team as Notre Dame. Nebraska's got a real tough offense and they're going to be No. 1 so they've got to be better. You could say they sort of engulfed us." "You don't make mistakes against the No. 1 team in the country and expect to win," said McClendon, who was a New Year's Day loser for the first time. He had won four previous Jan. 1 bowl games. The turn of events in the Cotton and Rose bowls brought back bitter memories for Devaney. Exactly five years ago No. 1 Michigan State lost in the Rose and No. 2 Arkansas lost to LSU in the Cotton. Nebraska, ranked third, took on No. 4 Alabama in the Orange Bowl that night and the Crimson Tide soared to a 39-28 victory that earned them the No. 1 spot in the AP's first poll following bowl games. "I told my players before the game that I knew they weren't going to do that," said Devaney. "We weren't going to miff it again," he said.

Wishbone Defense Snaps Streak

Voo! Irish Topple Texas

(AP) — For 32 own national championship dreams, shocked Texas in the first half with their newly concocted Mirrored Wishbone defense. The Longhorns must have been embarrassed no end at seeing Notre Dame line up behind its defensive line exactly the way Texas did behind its offensive line. It was like looking in a mirror and there was nothing they could do about it. In the Wishbone offense, the three deep backs form almost a straight T-formation, but the middle man — the fullback — is set a couple of feet in front of the halfbacks, resembling a Y. When that happened, Notre Dame linebacker Jim Wright assumed a position directly opposite the fullback — the two lines separating them — with linebacker Tim Kelly and defensive back Mike Crotty several feet behind him on either side that crushed their

After a fruitless first period which saw them trailing 14-3, the Longhorns, the nation's top rushing team but only 102nd among 118 major college football teams in passing, did what Notre Dame wanted. They broke up their Wishbone and went to more of a passing attack by flanking halfback Jim Bertelsen. Notre Dame simply moved Crotty out to cover him. The Mirrored Wishbone was the reason Coach Ara Parseghian closed all practice sessions this week. And just in case any spies managed to sneak a look, Notre Dame scrimmaged with 13 men on defense to camouflage their true alignment. After quarterback Eddie Phillips rocked them with a 63-yard gallop to the Notre Dame 10 on Texas' first play, the Irish stiffened. They lifted Texas to a field goal and a mere 3-0 lead at that point and held the Longhorns to 216 yards on the ground, compared to their 374.5 average. "We learned a great deal here a year ago," said Parseghian. "We even adopted some Wishbone offense last spring for the very purpose of knowing more about it." Notre Dame also showed some power—I, full house and pro sets and even used corner back Clarence Ellis, voted the game's outstanding defensive player, to catch a 37-yard pass. "After Texas beat Arkansas so badly earlier this month, we knew that no conventional defense could possibly work against the consistency of their attack and the super execution Texas manages. "They did what we wanted them to. They broke up their backfield by flanking Bertelsen and that took away their lead blocker on the triple option. We broke their winning streak, we held the nation's top rushing team to 216 yards and we held the nation's No. 1 scoring team to one touchdown. We wanted them to throw the ball and we made them throw 27 times." Notre Dame also scored the points against Texas in two years and they all came in the first half. Just as they unveiled the Mirrored Wishbone at the start, in the scoreless second half the Irish returned to their normal defense — a 4-4 or split-6, with two linebackers moving up to form a six-man forward wall. "They didn't win by confusion," insisted Darrell Royal of Texas. "They won because of their fine football team. They're big and strong and they played better than we did. We hadn't anticipated their defense and it surprised us a little bit. But we fumbled a kickoff on our 14 and gave them an easy touchdown. You can't give the defense credit for that one." Whatever the reason, All-American fullback Steve Worster was braked with 42 yards on 16 carries and Bertelsen carried eight times for a scant five yards. Only on an 18-play, 84-yard scoring drive in the second period did Texas look like the machine that chewed up 30 consecutive opponents, 10 this season. The butter-fingered Texans also lost five of their nine fumbles, with Worster bobbling four and losing three, and the miracles Texas fans have come to expect from their enchanted Longhorns never materialized. Meanwhile, All-American quarterback Joe Theismann sparked the Irish to a 21-3 after only 16½ minutes with a 28-yard touchdown pass to Tom Gatewood and scoring runs of three and 15 yards. The second TD followed Danny Lester's fumble of a kickoff at the Texas 14. Phillips, Texas' slippery quarterback, was named the outstanding offensive player. He carried 23 times for 164 yards and completed nine of 17 passes for 199 yards before he was knocked groggy and sidelined with nine minutes left. His total of 363 yards broke the record of 279 set by Theismann a year ago.

UCLA, the Steel turned winner, hosts second-ranked South the Holiday Festival entertains Clemson in a of post-holiday basketball. UCLA and South Carolina doing the entertaining, (ful that Dayton and will enjoy their visits. Bruins and Gamecocks

In 24 years, he's won over 500 games for a 77.4 winning percentage. Forwards Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe are the reasons for UCLA's success of late. "Sidney is doing it all," says Wooden, "and Rowe has never played a bad basketball game in his three years here." The Uclans have been averaging a little under 100 points a game this year and have held opponents to about 25 points less.

Along with Adolph Rupp of Kentucky and Wooden, Coach Frank McGuire is the only active major college coach winning more than 70 per cent of his career games. In 20 seasons, McGuire has a 71.1 percentage, including a 25-3 mark last year and 8-0 this season. McGuire doesn't think about records, though. ## Moorhead Starting Shrine Quarterback

Spartan Loses Coin Flip

OAKLAND (AP) — A toss of a coin is becoming standard procedure in deciding which players start in the 46th annual Shrine East-West Classic here Saturday. East defensive coach Carmen Cozza of Yale made a flip Friday determining that Tom Neville of Yale will be in the lineup as left side linebacker ahead of Wilt Martin of Michigan State. Barry Brink of Dartmouth will start ahead of Randy Rustik of Virginia at defensive left tackle because of a Cozza coin toss. Earlier, head East coach John Pont had flipped a coin to decide on Don Moorhead of Michigan as his starting quarterback. Pont explained that something unusual had to be done to cope with a situation involving players of virtually equal abilities. Both teams skipped major workouts Friday in favor of watching bowl games, particularly Stanford's late afternoon 27-17 Rose Bowl Victory over Ohio State. The West team loosened up about 20 minutes in the morning and the East took to the field for about 30 minutes after the Pasadena game.

Bullets Reopen Wound--Cavaliers Losing Again

From Associated Press Guess what? The Cleveland Cavaliers lost a game. Normally, that wouldn't be too unusual, but the weak National Basketball Association expansion club recently put together a two-game winning streak their only back-to-back victories. Now they're back in the old groove, losing to the Baltimore Bullets 127-105 Friday night for their second straight setback. Earl Monroe and Jack Marin scored 22 points apiece as the Bullets racked up 30 points or more in each quarter and handed the tattered Cavaliers their 40th loss in 45 games. Elsewhere in the NBA, San Diego beat Los Angeles 117-106 and Seattle edged Portland 121-

118. There were no American Basketball Association games. Baltimore took over at the start with a 3-2 lead and was never threatened. The Bullets opened a 65-51 advantage at halftime and built their lead to 27 points in the second half. Bobby Smith and John Johnson led Cleveland with 18 and 16 points respectively, and rookie Dave Sorenson added 14.

Toledo String Top

Toledo became the major college football team with the longest consecutive victory string Friday after Notre Dame snapped Texas' skein of 30 triumphs in the Cotton Bowl. Toledo, a 40-12 victor over William & Mary in last Monday's Tangerine Bowl, has won 23 straight, including 12 this year. The all-time record for most consecutive victories is 47 by Oklahoma from 1953-57.

Job Corps Provides New Skills For Youth

Eau Claire Boy Finds New Hope

By WILLIAM RUSH
Staff Writer

The Job Corps, funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity, works with school drop-outs between the ages of 16 and 21, attempting to guide young lives that face a future without skill or education. An Eau Claire youth is one of the successes of which the corps is proud.

Ellis Mason, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Mason, of Pipestone road, left school after eighth grade. Finding little need in the labor market for youths under 18, he tried the Michigan Employment Security commission where Job Corps recruiters Linda Leppke and Jim Twomley are stationed.

After taking placement tests in the commission offices at 800 Port street, St. Joseph, Ellis departed last Aug. 26 for the Blackwell Job Corps center in Laona, Wis., which is in the middle of Wisconsin's Nicolet National forest. This was his choice over the Job Corps' urban center in Atterbury, Ind.

Ellis has won four trophies for proficiency in sports at the Job Corps center. He has five months to go to complete training.

At the Blackwell center, Ellis is specializing in carpentry while doing construction work for the national park. He is also given a chance to work at brick laying and on big road equipment.

Ellis is now on leave from the center where he returns Jan. 4. Ellis reported, "We get up at 6:30 in the morning, eat breakfast, and then we either work or are in school from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. After 6 p.m. we have free time which is our chance for sports competition."

Recruiter Twomley added that his office refers about 50 or 60 youths each year to the two Job Corps centers. "They must be out of school for at least three months and then must stay at the centers for nine months before being considered Job Corps graduates," Twomley said.

"At the age of 18, graduates can apply to the federal government's General Educational Development program for testing in the four basic high school subjects," Twomley explained. "These tests are offered at Lake Michigan college and Andrews university. A passing score is equivalent to a high school diploma," he added.

"When youths like Ellis turn 18, and have a skill or education, they suddenly become valuable to the job market," Twomley said.
